

Wrath

Falanghina, 2018
Ex Dolio, Monterey

Wine Spectator

“Asian pear, apricot, and dried mango; with a touch of honeycomb and roasted hazelnut, finishing with sturdy acidity”

Ex Dolio means “from the dolium”, the clay pot used for fermenting grapes by ancient Romans. Our owner, an archaeologist, used a combination of ancient winemaking and modern control methods for a wine that spans centuries.

Wrath

Falanghina, 2018
Ex Dolio, Monterey

Wine Spectator

“Asian pear, apricot, and dried mango; with a touch of honeycomb and roasted hazelnut, finishing with sturdy acidity”

Ex Dolio means “from the dolium”, the clay pot used for fermenting grapes by ancient Romans. Our owner, an archaeologist, used a combination of ancient winemaking and modern control methods for a wine that spans centuries

Wrath

Falanghina, 2018
Ex Dolio, Monterey

Wine Spectator

“Asian pear, apricot, and dried mango; with a touch of honeycomb and roasted hazelnut, finishing with sturdy acidity”

Ex Dolio means “from the dolium”, the clay pot used for fermenting grapes by ancient Romans. Our owner, an archaeologist, used a combination of ancient winemaking and modern control methods for a wine that spans centuries